EASTERN NEWS.

[BY TELEGRAPH TO THE OREGONIAN]

Reinforcements for Terry.

[illegible] July [illegible].—The [illegible] infantry under Capt. Mills arrived to-day and leave this morning taking on [illegible] recruits, [illegible] Indian guides, horses and supplies. The Josephine will sail this afternoon. [illegible] returns [illegible] to his post.

Crook Blamed for Failing to Co-operate with Terry.

Army officers generally blame Crook for a failure to co-operate with Terry, believing he was anxious to win laurels without assistance or interference of a gentleman [illegible] still inferior in rank. [illegible] Crook knows but little of the plans of Indians and lacks the experience necessary [illegible] conducting an army operating against a wily and [illegible] foe.

The Sioux Underestimated.

The greatest mistakes in the campaign [illegible] the under estimate of the number of Sioux [illegible] disposition to fight. Gen. Miles says he [illegible] nearly all of the fighting men from Standing [illegible] went out, and he stopped them long enough [illegible] the ground over, and the agent at Lower [illegible] adds that his Indians are all out and also [illegible] Cheyenne agency, not to speak of [illegible] Tail and Red Cloud who are certainly with them. The hostile bands have been largely [illegible] out since the battle. Gen. Miles gives the [illegible] recent removal of women and children [illegible] friendly disposed Indians of Standing Rock agency to the east side of the river, the hostiles [illegible] them they intended to raid the agency [illegible] all [illegible] them and believing they would [illegible] they have removed to the other side of the [illegible] for protection. A Sioux scout in the employ of the Government at Fort Rice after the recent [illegible] said he always knew the Sioux outnumbered the whites, and that he believed they would conquer in the end. The idea prevails to a great extent among the young warriors who go into the campaign better armed than the whites with a knowledge of every ravine in the country, and almost every tree from behind which an Indian can shoot a cavalryman, and they are confident that they will win. Well informed river and frontiersmen say that the Indians have an effective force of at least 10,000 well armed and abundantly supplied.

Dispatch from Gen. Crook.

[illegible], July 25.—The following dispatch was [illegible] at General Sheridan's headquarters this [illegible]:

CAMP ON GOOSE CREEK, Wy., July 16,
VIA FETTERMAN July 22.

[illegible] Sheridan: I sent out Lieut. Sibley on the [illegible] with a small detachment of the 2d cavalry [illegible] my guide Frank Grouard to make a reconnoissance. When the party came on the 7th [illegible] near where the Little Big Horn debouches [illegible] the mountains they encountered the Sioux in [illegible] force and saw enough to convince them [illegible] main village of the hostiles is not far from [illegible] point. They succeeded in making their escape after abandoning their horses and marching [illegible] the rugged foot hills of the Big Horn mountains. Lieut. Sibley and Frank Grouard are entitled [illegible] great credit for their coolness and judgment [illegible] in the detachment when surrounded by [illegible] superior force of the enemy.

(Signed) GEO. CROOK, Brig. Gen.

Letter from Mr. Wheeler.

Cincinnati, July 25.—W. A. Wheeler, Republican candidate for Vice President, in reply to a letter [illegible] Wm. Ampt of this city in regard to his ac[illegible] Ohio river interests while in Congress [illegible] follows: "The whole extent and nature [illegible] position on my part to the Ohio river im[illegible] been grossly misrepresented. Gen. [illegible] preparing an opening campaign speech [illegible] the matter will be fully explained."

[illegible] Death by Coal Oil Explosion.

[illegible], July 25.—Two young daughters of [illegible]ard, near Logansport, Ind., were burnt to [illegible] day night by the explosion of a coal oil [illegible] which they were pouring oil on the [illegible].

Flood in the Red River.

[illegible]port, La., July 25.—The river has fallen [illegible] at Carolina bluff. This fall should [illegible] to-morrow. From the raft to Fulton [illegible]uction is very great. The damage to the [illegible] crop by the late flood in the upper river is [illegible] at 20,000 bales.

New York, July 24.—Base ball at Syracuse—Stars [illegible], San Franciscos 2.

New York State Politics.

[illegible] Tribune's Albany special says George Wm. [illegible], Joseph H. Choate, Francis H. Barlow and [illegible] H. Foster arrived there and had a long con[illegible] on the governorship and Presidential elec[illegible]. Curtis and Foster were the heroes of the [illegible] fight at Syracuse last spring. Barlow [illegible] law of Choate and is heart and soul [illegible] him in his opposition to the custom house [illegible], and Choate is president of the Union [illegible] club whose impudence was heralded pretty [illegible]. [illegible] Cornell last spring besides being a part[illegible]. The nomination of the latter [illegible] governor it is understood was pretty strongly [illegible].

WASHINGTON CITY.

[illegible] Confirmations by the Senate.

[illegible], July 25.—A Washington special says [illegible] confirmed the following nominations: [illegible] Thos. B. Shannon of California, [illegible] of Customs for the district of San Fran[illegible]; [illegible] appointed Wm. T. Wright of Maryland [illegible] at Santos, Brazil; George F. Talbot, Solic[illegible] the Treasury. For transfer to the Sev[illegible] cavalry, Second Lieut. Wm. W. Robinson, Jr., [illegible] cavalry, vice Hodgson, killed in action; [illegible] Lieut. Chas. B. Scofield, second cavalry, [illegible] promoted; Second Lieut. Chase, Third [illegible], vice Nave promoted; Second Lieut. John [illegible]kinson, Fifth cavalry, vice Wallace promoted; Second Lieut. Ezra B. Fuller, Eighth cavalry, vice Varnum promoted; Second Lieut. Geo. O. [illegible], Fifth cavalry, vice Harrington missing in [illegible]; [illegible] Lieut. Edwin H. Andrews, Fifth [illegible], vice Hare promoted; Second Lieut. Gra[illegible], Third cavalry, vice Sturgis killed in action; [illegible] Lieut. Hugh L. Scott, Ninth cavalry, vice [illegible] killed in action; Second Lieut. L. S. McCor[illegible], Ninth cavalry, vice Everson promoted; Second Lieut. Albert J. Russell, Tenth cavalry, vice [illegible] promoted.

[illegible] the Abolition of Silver Twenty-Cent Pieces.

[illegible]an LeMoyne, in accordance with the [illegible] of a prominent Chicago business house [illegible] introduced a bill repealing the act [illegible] the issue of twenty cent silver pieces. [illegible] they present the easiest possible [illegible] for swindling as they can readily be passed [illegible] quarter dollars.

Lucky Creditors.

[illegible] Comptroller of the Currency declared the [illegible] final dividend of 25 per cent. in favor of [illegible]itors of the First National Bank of Wash[illegible], D. C., making a total dividend of 100 per [illegible].

[illegible] and Spotted Tail Agencies Turned Over to the Military.

[illegible]ton, July 25.—The Commissioner of In[illegible] on Saturday, telegraphed the Indian [illegible] Red Cloud and Spotted Tail agencies to [illegible] their charges to the military officers at [illegible] Robinson and Camp Sheridan respectively. [illegible] done by the Commissioner because he [illegible] best under the present condition of [illegible] have perfect harmony between the civil [illegible] officers near the agencies and thus [illegible] any possible controversy between the offi[illegible] the agents.

Land Patent Issued.

Washington, July 24.—The Commissioner of the [illegible] Land Office has issued a patent for the [illegible] San Guarino in San Luis Obispo county [illegible] Nula Rafael Villavicencio, containing [illegible] acres.

The Fruit Brandy Bill.

Washington, July 24.—The fruit brandy bill [illegible] the House to-day [illegible] Hancock, of Texas. It is the measure which [illegible] reported last Monday with the statement that it had been prepared by the internal revenue department and was unanimously approved by the ways and means committee. It contains no provision [illegible] any reduction of the present tax on grape brandy and differs from the California [illegible] in [illegible] other respects. It [illegible] that every distiller of brandy from grapes [illegible] rendering his monthly statement of the ma[illegible] used and spirits produced shall immediately [illegible] the tax on said spirits or give bond in [illegible] with two or more sureties satisfactory to the internal revenue collector of his district that he will pay the tax within three years and before the removal of the spirits from the place [illegible].

[illegible] Vice President on the Cooper Ticket.

Washington, July 24.—A [illegible] [illegible] Presidential ticket.

Congressional Deadlock Giving Way.

Chicago, July 24.—The Tribune's Washington special says [illegible] the deadlock on the [illegible] will be broken [illegible] [illegible] about the [illegible] of next week.

River and Harbor Bill.

The Tribune's Washington special says [illegible] members who have been [illegible] for the interests of their [illegible] during the past [illegible] weeks at the [illegible] of the river and harbor bill had known what the fate of the bill would be they would have saved themselves much [illegible]. If they would now be made to believe what is in fact true, that the President intends to veto the bill they would save a good deal of valuable time and enable Congress to adjourn much sooner than it is likely to do. At this moment his reasons for his decision are that there is not now sufficient time [illegible] the Illinois and Northand W[illegible]. If the bill should pass say by the [illegible] of August it is likely to be too late for effective operations. [illegible] much at least is required to advertise and get ready to let work under appropriations [illegible] before the work can fairly [illegible] under way [illegible] and the [illegible] winter takes [illegible]. The President does not intend to allow [illegible] Democrats to escape the responsibility of delaying the appropriation bills until after the beginning of the fiscal year. He has said that if any trouble comes from the failure of Congress to pass them at the proper time it must be [illegible] at the door of the Democrats. The bill itself is still in the [illegible] as start [illegible] passage as ever. Every Senator has succeeded in increasing the appropriations for his State or [illegible] being cut down which each one has been claiming reductions [illegible]. The whole bill as it stands to-day is the product of demagogues [illegible] [illegible] interfered with. [illegible] would [illegible] the Senate would allow it to expire with the present session [illegible].

Administration Aid to Carry the Louisiana Election.

WASHINGTON, July 25.—General [illegible] Morris [illegible], a leading [illegible] of the Republicans [illegible] of Louisiana, called on the President this morning and received from him assurances that the administration will furnish all necessary aid to Packard and the Republican managers of Louisiana to carry the State next November. The President is reported as having said: "We shall carry Louisiana. We don't want to carry only three of the Southern States—the other two are North and South Carolina." The President also sent a message to Packard requesting him to select a good man for his successor in the marshal's office, and assuring him that means for making a most vigorous campaign in the State will be furnished.

The Real Estate Pool Committee about to Report.

The Tribune's Washington special says the committee appointed to investigate the real estate pool of the District of Columbia and the indebtedness of Jay Cooke & Co. and other subjects held a long meeting to-day for the purpose of considering the draft of the report which has been prepared by its chairman. At the recent meeting the resolution attached to the report had by the vote of the committee been so amended as to propose a reference of the testimony and report to the committee on judiciary for their consideration and for them to determine whether sufficient grounds for impeachment had been discovered. At [illegible] [illegible] to lay the report [illegible] the House was still further postponed in order to give Robeson opportunity to appear before the committee and make any explanation he [illegible] desire. A special meeting of the committee will be held on Wednesday for this purpose. [illegible] members of the committee, Lewis and Cate, [illegible] that the best policy in this matter is to [illegible] slowly and be sure of every step, have [illegible] summary [illegible] the Republicans have brought about the arrangements referred to above.

Mr. Black's Defense of Belknap.

A large audience gathered to hear Black to-day. He disappointed the expectations of his friends, as it is said he only made the best of a [illegible] case. Black was listened to with the utmost courtesy [illegible] by the Senate. He is not a pleasant speaker and it was difficult to keep the run of his argument in the galleries. He made a very effective closing which will not tend to help his case among the Senators. He carried the idea throughout his address that the money received from Marsh by Belknap was a present. He closed by reminding Senators the incumbent of the executive mansion was not above present taking. He referred to the Credit Mobilier Congressmen and to Henry Clay, Daniel Webster and others who have been benefited by the receipts of presents. He thought the fact that Pierrepont had contributed $25,000 to the election of Grant was worth considering, since he had received two of the highest offices in the President's gift.

To-morrow it is expected that Carpenter will speak, to be followed by Lord, who will close the case. It is said Carpenter will read two autograph letters from George Washington, one acknowledging the receipt of some stationery from a subordinate as a present and intimating that more would be acceptable, and another asking to be furnished by the quartermaster general with a large roomy sleigh and a fine pair of horses for his own use.

The Report of the Real Estate Pool.

The Chicago Tribune's Washington special says the real estate pool held a long secret meeting on the Robeson report. The Republican members contended that Robeson ought to have an opportunity to see the testimony in the case and make some answer or explanation. They decided they would not assent to the present action of the report until he had this opportunity. Glover, chairman, said Robeson denied the whole thing as stated by the majority, and it was no use to call him. It was finally agreed that Robeson should be allowed to state his arrangement with Jay Cooke, McCulloch & Co., and he will go before the committee to-morrow. The presentation of the report to the House will be delayed several days.

Action of the Committee on Currency and Banking.

The currency committee held a meeting to-day and will meet again to-morrow. It is believed that no agreement to vote for the repeal of the resumption act can be obtained. The Tilden men's efforts have been redoubled by the apparent advances of the soft money ideas. The vote on Kelly's silver inflation bill caused general surprise and great rejoicing among the Softs. It provides for recoining old silver dollars and making them legal tender, which the Hards contend is equivalent to enabling the payment of the debt in a medium worth considerably less than paper. About 20 Republicans voted for the resolution and about as many Democrats against it. There is a strong confidence to-night among the silver men that they can pass their extreme measures in the House, though there is no expectation of forcing them through the Senate, at least in the shape they desire. One of the first features of the vote to-day is that it gives confidence to the Democrats who are working to repeal the resumption clause of 1875 and save it an inflation measure. They think the vote to-day will insure such a break among the hard money men as to strengthen them.

To-morrow they hope to get up [illegible]'s bill from the committee on mines and mining, and pass it. This provides that any holder of silver bullion may deposit it at the mint, and receive coin certificates therefor which are receivable for customs. Many think to-night that the struggle over the inflation question and over the St. Louis platform will culminate to-morrow.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, July [illegible].

Judge Black's argument for Belknap was characterized by ingenuity and ability. He treated the question of jurisdiction as being still an open one and characterized the receipt of money by Belknap as the acceptance of presents, which was no crime. He ingeniously alluded to John Quincy Adams' appointment of Henry Clay as Secretary of State as a return for what Clay did in electing him, to the donations made to Daniel Webster and to the many valuable gifts made to Grant before his election, followed by appointment after he became President of the donors to high places. These were not bribes, neither could the present of Marsh to the members of Belknap's family be called bribes.

At the conclusion of the argument of Judge Black, the Senate, sitting as a court, adjourned.

The Senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

The Senate will hold no business session to-morrow. Carpenter will commence his argument at noon, and be followed by Scott Lord. Nothing [illegible] then left but for the Senators to decide and vote guilty or not guilty. If their deliberations are [illegible] they will occupy several days, but if private the verdict will be reached Wednesday or Thursday at the latest.

House.

[illegible] offered a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Treasury for a report of the amount of gold coin and gold bullion in the treasury on this day actually owned by the government, with a detailed statement of the outstanding gold certificates, gold interest due [illegible] called bonds [illegible] obligations payable in gold on demand [illegible].

[illegible] moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution directing the attorney general, secretary of the treasury and commissioner of internal revenue to suspend [illegible] under the act of August 5, 1861 [illegible].

[illegible] next Monday [illegible] business of the House [illegible] regard to these investigating committees.

Hale—In other words after the committee have waited eight months [illegible] give them leave to report at any time.

Banks [illegible] to suspend all business of the House in order to act upon these reports.

[illegible]—We must act upon it [illegible] for adjournment.

Banks—But they can take the order.

Cox [illegible] vote against it.

[illegible] would like to have the resolution [illegible] by also [illegible] to be [illegible].

The motion [illegible] and the rules [illegible] defeated by a party vote. Yeas [illegible] the necessary two thirds in the affirmative.

[illegible] asked leave to offer a [illegible] resolution [illegible] of the committee [illegible] New York [illegible] the question of the Venezuela [illegible].

[illegible] moved to suspend the rules and adopt [illegible] rejected [illegible] two thirds in the affirmative.

Hendee moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill [illegible] authorizing the [illegible] District of Columbia to defray the expenses of the District until Dec. [illegible] next by borrowing not over $1,150,000 at a rate of interest not exceeding 6 per cent. in anticipation of the tax for the fiscal year. Passed.

White moved to suspend the rules and pass the bill [illegible] the soldiers and sailors of the late war $1 an acre for their bounty land. Lost [illegible] affirmative.

Scales, from the committee on Indian affairs, moved to suspend the rules and pass the joint resolution for the appointment of a joint committee to visit the Indian territory during recess and to inquire into the condition of the Indians, etc. Lost.

Lamar, from the Pacific railroad committee, reported back the Senate bill to extend for eight years the time for the construction and completion of the Northern Pacific railroad and moved to suspend the rules and take up the bill for consideration.

Lawrence said it was an ill advised land grant [illegible] 47,000,000 acres.

Lamar—The gentleman is mistaken. It makes no land grant, and if I am allowed two minutes I will explain the bill, which was unanimously reported by the committee.

Several objections were made to the discussion and the motion to suspend the rules and consider the bill was rejected—yeas [illegible], nays [illegible].

Caldwell moved to suspend the rules and adopt a resolution aimed at Chandler, declaring that the performance by the head of an executive department of the government of the duties of chairman of a party committee, having in charge the management and prosecution of a political campaign, is inconsistent with the relations existing between him and the whole people, whose salaried servant he is, incompatible with the faithful, impartial and efficient discharge of the duties and responsibilities of his exalted position [illegible] challenges [illegible].

[illegible] the Sergeant-at-Arms [illegible] the Speaker [illegible] Democratic Convention. The motion to suspend the rules and pass the resolution was lost—yeas [illegible], nays 80.

Clark of Missouri from the [illegible] committee [illegible] the amended bill [illegible] the Presidential approval had been withheld on account of [illegible] the revised statutes [illegible] passed. The Speaker laid before the House a communication from the chairman of the [illegible] ordered printed.

White, as chairman of the committee [illegible] affairs, moved to suspend the rules and adopt an order that the report of that committee, together with that of the minority, made on the alleged abuses, errors and frauds in the naval service, be printed and their consideration made the special order for next Friday.

Garfield suggested a minority report was not yet read and that both reports should be withheld for the present.

Whitthorne [illegible] the public printer might withhold the delivery of the majority report until that of the minority should be also read.

Harrison [illegible] of the minority of the committee related the difficulty in the way of having its report ready, the evidence on which it should be based being nearly [illegible] of which were printed only a few days ago, and the majority report covering fourteen printed pages having been furnished to the minority only on Saturday [illegible] the report of the minority was not in the hands of the short hand writers. He argued that it could not be printed and in the hands of the members in time for a fair consideration of the subject as soon as Friday next.

Garfield suggested it would be hardly fair toward a high officer of the government to have a report given to the public before it could be accompanied by the other report giving the other view of the case. Both should be delivered to the public press at the same time. He therefore asked a postponement of the matter until both reports were ready.

Whitthorne stated in reply that the testimony on which the report was based was not exclusively [illegible] but had been accessible to the minority as it was being printed during the progress of the investigation.

The motion to suspend the rules and adopt the order was rejected by a party vote—yeas 111, nays 71, not the necessary two thirds in the affirmative. Adjourned.

Suicide.

SAN JOSE, July 24.—This afternoon a young man named Alva C. Whitmore committed suicide in [illegible] stage stable, adjoining St. James hotel, by shooting himself through the head. From a farewell letter to his mother found on his person, together with a note to a young lady called Lilly from Napa City, at present attending the Normal school here, it is evident the young man was not just right in his mind. He blamed her for throwing off on him and quit work last Saturday, since which time he has been about town drinking more or less and hinting at self destruction, and to a reporter he stated that he would give him a good item before to-morrow, but his manner was such that all supposed he was joking. Just before he committed the fatal act he went to the barber shop adjoining the stable and told the barber to shave him as nicely as he intended to kill himself, but the man supposed it was mere talk and paid no attention. Soon after he went up and down town and paid up several trifling debts and going to the rear of the stable put the weapon to his breast and sent a ball through his heart. Death was instantaneous. He was a young man of good character and habits, and had a respectable family at [illegible], Jackson, Michigan.

He was carried into Kelly's drug store. After suffering intense agony about three hours he died in the drug store at 8:30.

SANTA CRUZ, July 25.—At 5 o'clock this morning a cave occurred in the tunnel of the Felton Railroad Co., by which John Hickey was badly bruised and had his left arm broken. The timbering had not been continued nearer than within about 12 feet of the face. A natural seam in this space attracted the workmen's attention and they left the tunnel, but Hickey went back to inspect the matter, when he was struck on the head by falling rock and almost immediately buried in the quantity of earth and stone which followed. Until lately the boring has been through rock which has held together well, but the last few feet have been through a kind of loose gravely soil which gave easily to the pick. Yesterday the directors of the Felton R. R. Co. arrived here by special train on a tour of inspection over their line.

NEVADA.

Details of the Flood near Diamond City.

EUREKA, July 25.—Later news from the flood near Diamond City proves that there were no lives lost. There were 13 Chinese wood choppers encamped in the bed of the canyon. Seven of them got out and six rolled and tumbled with the surging waves down to the valley below. One of the Chinamen was washed two miles and was badly cut and bruised and may possibly die. The others escaped without injury. The rumor that some 25 Italians, coal burners in the next canyon, had been swept away proves unfounded. On Ruby Hill there was quite as much water as here. John Lambert lost one thousand dollars in goods. Both his store and dwelling house came near going, but owing to the timely assistance of the miners who improvised a dam to turn the water this was prevented. Electricity cut many capers about the Richmond works on the north side of the hill; all the iron work seemed to be charged with the subtle fluid. Two men were knocked down by taking hold of the iron cage. Wm. Davis was one of the parties thus treated, and at latest accounts last evening his arms were still paralyzed. Forty inches of water poured down the shaft of Eureka Consolidated for a time, and it was only by the most strenuous efforts that the stream was diverted. No particular damage was done at the Hamburg mine. The stream came rushing down against the [illegible] hoist four feet deep by two feet wide. It was with the greatest difficulty that the building was saved. Mr. McDaniel, who lives at the head of Goodwin canyon, says it was no cloud burst, but merely a heavy hail and rain storm.

BRITISH COLUMBIA.

An Invalid Act of Legislature.

VICTORIA, July 25.—The Standard claims that as the new census act passed at the last session of the legislature of this province provides for taking a census and collecting statistics, that it is beyond the possibility of a doubt invalid and worthless. It quotes from the British American act of 1867 in support of its statement, and says that taking a census and collecting statistics is the exclusive right of the Dominion government and not of any provincial legislature, and also that the census act of 1870 repeals all acts and parts of acts in force in any of the provinces relative to a census. The Standard recommends the government to take the matter in hand at once and have the matter tested before the supreme court.

EASTERN CONNECTION.

PORTLAND, July 1[illegible], 1876.

[illegible]: Considering that it is of almost universal belief among us that Oregon [illegible] that what [illegible] something in the way of railway connection eastward, and that just now the most all absorbing question among the people of the Northern Pacific coast on the subject of railroads eastward is "What shall we do?" I have concluded to offer the following suggestions.

That it is futile to undertake what we are wholly unable to perform, and among ourselves we have not the means to build a railroad, which at most must come from abroad, and capital from abroad does not seem swift in seeking investment with us. California, the first known of the Pacific States, overtops us. If we can of ourselves find no foreign capital to come here we can rely on its coming otherwise we cannot. California, and for that matter no other State, will lend its efforts to bring capital to come here. California is our rival and self-constituted master. Foreign capital can only be induced to come here by inducements presented to it by us in its abode or where owned.

So far as railway connection with the East is concerned, the two routes of the Dalles and Salt Lake and Winnemucca, have their respective advantages, disadvantages, merits, demerits and inducements for consideration, and each enterprise has some friends among us.

Whoever considers the subject of railway connection with the East and the various claims that present themselves, is forced into hesitancy as to what is best to be done. The Salt Lake railroad, it [illegible] held, if it could be built, would be the most advantageous to Oregon of any. It would traverse the greatest extent of country of any, the wealth of all of which would always be tributary to us, and it would never divert trade away from us, but attract increasing trade to us, and would not be liable to destructive discriminations to both itself and our interests. These advantages must be conceded by those even who urge only its shortness in favor of the Winnemucca route. Balanced against the length of the Salt Lake route, in it is longer than the Winnemucca, is the fact that Southeastern Oregon is proving to be generally of great altitude, too great to be very valuable as an agricultural region, and the fact that if completed it would and must be subject to the discriminations of the Central Pacific railroad.

Would not a railroad direct to Sacramento be better for Oregon than the Winnemucca road?

The "Covington, Columbus and Black Hills Railroad Co." is a corporation formed under the laws of the State of Nebraska to build a railroad from the Missouri river at Covington, opposite Sioux City, in the State of Iowa, to the Black Hills. Eastward of the Missouri river is the great net work of railroads in the United States extending throughout Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York. Several of these great railroads culminate at Sioux City, and more of them are tending there. Railroad interests like all others, are most influenced by interests of its own kind. This great net work of railroads in the States named is desirous of having other routes of communication with the Pacific than the Union Pacific and Central Pacific. Some one may ask, why, then, has the Texas-Pacific bill pending in Congress hung fire so long? Simply because it is no benefit, and will not be of any benefit to the States named containing the great mass of the railroads of the United States. It would be a great benefit to a large area of the United States, but it would not, it could not, be a competing line to the Union Pacific and Central Pacific road. Why? Because it (the Texas Pacific) will be about twelve or fifteen hundred miles longer than the U. P. and C. P. road, and besides, will not pass through or benefit the great railroad States named. During the past winter Senator Wright of Iowa introduced a bill in the U. S. Senate to incorporate a railroad company of the State of Nebraska, and authorize it to build a railroad from the Missouri river to Portland, Oregon. This is the agitation that is taking place at the other end of the route of a new and independent line of railroad from the Missouri river to the Pacific. By the way of the Platte river and South Pass, via the valley of the Columbia river to Portland, Oregon, with the Puget Sound branch from Portland, is the most valuable and practicable of all transcontinental routes. And it is believed that if the practicability and utility of a railroad upon this route can be shown more widely than it is known, and as it is, that the railroads of the States named would unite their efforts and they with us would certainly secure a railroad to be built upon this route. Any railroad transcontinental which does not have its western terminus north of San Francisco must from geographical considerations be a failure. If our legislature soon to convene can shape its legislation so as to assist the Salt Lake company even in the small way of enabling it to survey its road to the vicinity of Raft river, it is thought it would be money well expended, as the results to follow therefrom, independent of advancing the company, would more than repay the State for the outlay. Twenty five or thirty thousand dollars would be sufficient to make the survey and for incidental expenses toward placing the advantages and practicability of the route where it would insure success. Some strong efforts have to be used to place the advantages of the route fairly before railroad men and capitalists of the East and Europe. Prior efforts have proved that in this way alone the problem of railway connection with the East can be solved, and that the utility of such a railroad and the practicability of the route is always conceded by the rich and poor everywhere when the subject is examined. The Central Pacific railroad has the great influence which the immense subsidies that Congress bestowed on it wherewith to cloud our locality and advantage for a railway connection with the East, and make it necessary to prove the superiority of the route for which I contend over every other to foreign capitalists. In order to lessen the influences of the Central Pacific Company and obtain a fair hearing of our own locality and our favorite route upon its merits we must make preparations therefore [illegible] are the influences at work against us. As evidence of what I say with reference to the Central Pacific Company I extract a statement from a long editorial of the New York Times of June [illegible], 18[illegible], on the subject of [illegible] as follows: "The roads constituting the Central route are at present a monopoly whose influence has been exerted here and in Europe to prevent the construction of competing routes."

Twenty five or thirty thousand dollars could be [illegible] by suitable legislation in such shape as not to be felt by taxpayers, which it would reimburse the State in a few years more even than expended. Last year favorable negotiations with British capitalists by the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake company were broken off from the fact that this company was unable to furnish detailed estimates of the cost [illegible]. Now if Oregon [illegible] wish to do what is in their power toward securing a railroad to the East it is with them [illegible] to survey this route and for [illegible] expenses [illegible] its advantages [illegible] before [illegible] capitalists, and if we cannot do more we can at least show the world that the whole Pacific coast is not [illegible] the [illegible] of the Central Pacific railroad across the Sierras or [illegible] except at San Francisco. Moreover by a survey of this route we speak to capitalists and railroad men everywhere in language of an unmistakable tone. Besides it is believed that with this survey that negotiations can again be renewed directly with English capitalists to build the road. And should this survey be made and the Central Pacific Co. then offer us more favorable terms than it has yet done we may accept them when offered. That company has always been more active toward agreeing to build into Oregon when something seemed to be doing for the Portland, Dalles and Salt Lake railroad. It will be recollected that Mr. C. P. Huntington's railroad proposition was dated just three days after our railroad meeting held in this city on the 12th of March last, at which resolutions, favorable to the Salt Lake railroad, were passed.

Eastern Oregon, Idaho and Eastern Washington Territory, in times gone by, have sent no very small amount of trade to Portland, and may not appeal to us altogether without some claim to consideration in the securing of railway connection with the East. Yours truly,

PRO BONO PUBLICO.

OREGON.

Salem has levied a tax of 8 mills on the dollar for city purposes.

A Portland man has bought the mills at Silverton, Marion county, for $8,000.

Chas. Smith and Jerry Clark, two young men from Polk county, were conveyed to the penitentiary this week for larceny.

Several Chinamen are making from one to two dollars per day by taking dirt from the streets in Umatilla and washing it through rockers at the river.

Last week Dr. Simpson, of Birch creek, took from the range a three year old stallion, belonging to himself, which when put on the scales weighed 1,420 pounds.

Some bands of Indians from the tribes east of the mountains are making arrangements to go and fight the Sioux. Two of the Nez Perces were with Custer in his fight, and were killed.

A party is in Umatilla county at present engaged in buying horses for the Montana market, and has already about 600 head, most of which were bought of the Indians at about $10 per head.

It is now thought that Mr. A. D. Scott, who was thrown from his horse between Salem and Silverton last week and badly hurt, will not recover. His physician is reported to have pronounced his case hopeless.

Charley Black, who drives for the Northwestern Stage Co. from Umatilla to Coyote station, was compelled during high water to find another road, and in doing so found one which has instead of 10 miles of heavy sand 10 of solid gravel.

Last week Sheriff Sargent of Umatilla county arrested James Wilson of Butter creek, charged with stealing a horse valued at $100, the property of Rachel Yoakum. Wilson was indicted by the grand jury of this county in 1873, but kept out of the way until last Wednesday, when arrested; he gave bonds to the amount of $500 to appear before the circuit court. Another arrest made at the same time was that of J. C. Wilson, charged with the seduction of Angelina Yarlett. Wilson gave bonds in the sum of $500.

The East Oregonian is informed Wednesday by John McBane, interpreter on the Umatilla reservation, that the news of Custer's defeat has been received by all of the Indians, not from the whites but from their own means of communication. As Custer's battle was fought on the 27th of last month only, we can form some idea from this how rapidly the Indians of one part can transmit information to those of another. McBane says that several parties from this and other agencies are making preparations to go and join our forces against the Sioux.

About two weeks ago a man by the name of Rollins, who was working about 15 miles above Umatilla, saw just before dark a novel craft making its way down the river with a man aboard, who was undoubtedly captain. Rollins took a skiff, pulled out and found that the man, whoever he was, had taken a log, hewed a place on the top side sufficient to stand or sit on, and was on his way from Lewiston to Portland. He (the unknown) must have passed Umatilla in the night, and what has become of him is unknown, and as he has not been heard from since it is probable that he went in another direction to pass his centennial.

On Friday of last week three clouds bursted at different places on Willow creek, Umatilla county. Jerry Crowder was compelled to urge his team to the utmost for some distance to keep from being overtaken by the water on Hinton's fork. At Heppner the water rose six feet in 20 minutes. At Herron's place, Herron was compelled to carry his wife in his arms across a roaring torrent to a place of safety, expecting every moment to see the house go down stream, but fortunately it did not. Billeveaux, who drives from Heppner to Scotts, had to drive for a considerable distance on the road where the water was in some places over two feet deep.

On Sunday morning the 16th inst., Wm. Syphert, aged about [illegible] years, living on the hill road between Sublimity and Salem, disappeared from home and has not been heard of since that date. His brother states that upon the morning mentioned, he got up, ate his breakfast and assisted in doing the chores as usual, after which he donned his Sunday suit and started off in the direction of Turner's station. His family cannot account for the freak, and fear that some accident has befallen him. Any one knowing of his whereabouts will confer a favor by [illegible] Chas. Syphert, Salem, and relieve his aged mother, who is half distracted over his disappearance.

On Saturday last, as the steamer New Tenino was on her way up the river from Celilo, and about eight miles below Umatilla, she met what was at first supposed to be a log floating down the river, but which, on closer examination, proved to be a skiff bottom side up, with a man clinging to the side. He made no objection to being taken on board the steamer, and was brought back to Umatilla. It seems that he had started from Umatilla on Saturday, intending to go to the Yakima, but was swamped before proceeding far. He had given up all hopes when rescued by the steamer. He had goods to the amount of $100 in the boat which were of course lost.

The remarkable fact was recently mentioned that an Illinois girl had sheared thirteen sheep in two hours. The sequel of the story is related by the Chicago Journal as follows:

"What do you think of the girl?" inquired our representative of the farmer who owns the sheep that were operated upon.

"Think?" echoed the old fellow, as he pointed to a pen of fine wool sheep. "Just you look at them sheep, will ye, stranger—not an ear or a tail left to the whole crowd, an' then ask me what I think of that 'ere gal if ye can."

The reporter viewed with wonder the mutilated flock of mutton and agreed with the old farmer that sheep pens were not exactly the place for the exercise of woman's rights.

The Duke de Morny received an application for employment from a young man who came well recommended. "But I do not know how to find you a place; my household is full." "Your Grace," said the young man, nervously fingering his hat, "I sadly need work." "Well, suppose I make you my hairdresser." The applicant colored and replied indignantly: "I do not seek a sinecure."

They were discussing a young girl whose beauty makes a [illegible] sensation, but who, either because she lacks a fortune or for some other reason, sees none of her suitors declare themselves. "[illegible]," said one. "She makes all the [illegible]." "True," said another, "also a woman, but she would give all [illegible] master."

[illegible] father's heart.—"My friend," [illegible] one [illegible] "you seem to be somewhat unjust. Your elder son has settled down, it is true, but how he sowed his wild oats! And yet you prefer him to his younger brother, who is in every respect a model youth." "Precisely," replied the old man, "I have never had to forgive him."

Cham, in Le Charivari, gives an interesting picture of De Launay offering to set the Man in the Iron Mask at liberty if he will call himself Mangin and peddle lead pencils.

THE TERRITORIES.

The sum of $10,550 was paid into the Land Office at Boise in June for Government lands.

Five emigrant wagons drove into Walla Walla last week, just across from Missouri. Their teams were looking remarkably well.

In Stevens county, W. T., there are 250 whites and 100 Chinese. They have 10,000 head of cattle, 2,000 horses, 500 sheep and 150 hogs.

A proposition has been made to the Board by a gentleman who is the representative of a San Francisco company, to light the city of Walla Walla with gas.

The flags were put at half mast at Prescott, Arizona, on the 10th, the people there hearing that General Crook had been killed. They will be glad to learn their mistake.

New hay, unbaled, is selling by the wagon load in Olympia, at the [illegible] of $12 per ton. Owing to the long continued showers, it is expected that the hay crop will be fully equal to former years.

Gov. Thompson has [illegible] to the Secretary of War J. D. Cameron 500 volunteers from Idaho Territory, on ten days' notice, to help punish the Sioux and avenge the death of the gallant Custer if the government will arm and equip the men.

Willie Smith, a lad 16 years old, living on the Satsop, cut his left foot last Friday morning so badly along the [illegible] of his toes that all of them, except the large one, mortified. Dr. Waughop, of Olympia, was sent for last Tuesday, who amputated the [illegible] parts.

The tide carried off all the clothing of two Olympia ladies who were bathing some distance from the town, one evening not long since, except the shawl of one and collar of the other. They went back to town under night's sable covering.

In Eastern Washington the work of harvesting has begun in earnest. Laborers are in demand. Wheat, oats, barley and almost all kinds of grains and vegetables are abundant this year. Walla Walla papers speak in glowing terms of farm products in the [illegible] parts.

The Olympian is informed that the work on the Seattle and Walla Walla railroad is [illegible]ly and constantly progressing, and those having it in charge contemplate its [illegible] this fall to the Renton and Talbot [illegible] on Black river. This road will furnish facilities for transportation for both of said mines, and be a great benefit to farmers and the public generally in King county.

Jackson Hatch, District Attorney of [illegible] county, California, writes Governor Thompson of Idaho Territory that one Ned S[illegible], convicted of the murder of one Cla[illegible] and sentenced to the penitentiary for life, is now confined in their county jail as a fugitive from Idaho Territory, awaiting a requisition and an order to return him. Governor Thompson has looked up the law in such cases and finds no appropriation or provision for expenses in returning fugitives.

The Point [illegible] of July 18th [illegible]: "About 1,000 head of Indian horses have passed through here within the last week on the Montana route. Their destination is not known, but there is [illegible] to believe that these horses will find their way to the Sioux Indians. Our Government has just as much [illegible] to look [illegible] on the movement of this 1,000 [illegible] as they would if so many horses were on the way from Bismarck to the Big Horn country."

A correspondent writing from Colfax, W. T., under date of July 17, says: "We have had a splendid farming [illegible] with plenty of rain, and consequently crops look splendid. There is quite an [illegible] coming into Whitman county. [illegible] here than at any previous time since the settlement of the country. [illegible] which [illegible] plenty of [illegible] in Whitman county for five thousand [illegible] farms. Will not some [illegible] who have no farms come and take [illegible]."

The Walla Walla [illegible] Maskeyline, a stock [illegible], living out on the Tucannon, disappeared [illegible] the Fourth of July, and has [illegible] heard from. He and his brother [illegible] sheep ranch out on the T[illegible], and are [illegible] in good circumstances. They are both [illegible] men, and have been [illegible] month one of them came to Walla Walla, and on his return home found his brother William missing. Vigilant [illegible] for the missing man, but without [illegible]. Whether he wandered away or has [illegible] foully dealt with is a matter of [illegible].

On the evening of the [illegible], Mr. F[illegible] and R. H. Baskett were [illegible] Walla Walla, their team became frightened at [illegible] object lying in the road a short distance ahead of them, it being quite dark at the [illegible]. Mr. Frazer stopped the team and [illegible] went ahead to see what the object was. It proved to be Mrs. Sargent, wife of [illegible] Sargent of Dry creek, [illegible] and of course nothing could be learned as to how she had been hurt. She has a very severe bruise over her right eye, and [illegible] other injuries about the [illegible]; she [illegible] home, Dr. [illegible] from W[illegible] was [illegible] summoned, who has done [illegible] skillful physician [illegible] a very critical [illegible] Mrs. [illegible] been herding sheep on her [illegible] days [illegible], and it is supposed that she was either thrown from her horse and injured, or kicked while adjusting the [illegible], as the [illegible] were found over the horn of the saddle. It is quite certain that she was not thrown from the horse.

WEDNESDAY MORNING JULY 26 1876

THE TRIBUNE ON TILDEN AND HIS PARTY

The New York Tribune has been since 1872 an independent paper with unconcealed feelings of hostility to the Republican party. It has struck hard blows against the party whenever a reasonable excuse could be given for doing so. But the nomination of Hayes and Wheeler and the letter of acceptance of the former has made it a Republican paper for this campaign at least. It warns the people that Tilden though conceded to be an honest and able man is so hedged about by his party that it is idle to expect in case of his election any considerable improvement in the tone of national administration, and espouses the cause of the Republican candidates. The Tribune has for some time been regarded as an unswerving supporter of Governor Tilden in his prosecution of the canal thieves but now in the exercise of its independence it advises the election of the Ohio statesman instead of the renowned reformer of New York. Says the Tribune: "If it were simply the election of Mr Tilden to the chair of the Executive for four years it would be a matter of very serious moment. But Mr Tilden's election means vastly more. It is the success of a party and the adoption of a policy. With his accession to power there must come almost of necessity a Democratic Congress, certainly a Democratic House and very probably a Senate of the same political complexion. This is the combination of which Mr Tilden will be the central figure. How much more than a figure head he can be under such circumstances is a question worth considering. A Congress Democratic in both branches, with full power over legislation, subject to no check or control except such as might be exercised by the Executive in his use of the prerogative of the veto, is not a pleasant possibility for the friends of honest currency and civil service reform to contemplate. For we have something more tangible than platform professions, or even than the record of the candidate from which to judge what would happen under such circumstances. We have had already a taste of Democracy in the present Congress. We know what they do when they have the power. What they promise in platforms and talk about in newspapers and on the stump is one thing, what they actually do when the opportunity is given them is quite another. The election of Mr Tilden must give us in all the departments of Government the same thing we have been beholding in one branch of Congress for the past seven months. It would be 'the same, only more so and more of it.' Is it worth while to try that experiment?

Gov. Tilden is unquestionably honest and sincere in his expressed desire for administrative reform and his advocacy of resumption and honest currency. But it is the party behind Gov. Tilden that in the event of his election will direct legislation and control the Government. The party which in Congress to-day is almost unanimously in favor of the repeal of the resumption act is nevertheless supporting Mr Tilden's candidacy. It will undoubtedly come into full control of the Government if it succeeds in electing the President. And then the President will not legislate—the party will do that. And if it favors the repeal of the resumption act now, when it has only a majority in one branch, how it will hasten to carry through the repeal when it comes into full possession of the national legislature and has the opportunity to put in force its opinions. And as to the civil service, it must be remembered in connection with that subject as well, that the election of Mr. Tilden turns over the whole system of Federal patronage to the party which during the past seven months has made such dismal work of distributing the small amount of official patronage it had at its disposal. Mr Tilden himself may not be objectionable, but his election as a Democratic President implies so much more than his personal elevation that it will be only the part of ordinary prudence to consider the whole train of consequences to come from it before contributing in any manner to that result."

HORACE WHITE COMES OUT FOR HAYES AND GIVES HIS REASONS

Mr. Horace White, one of the ablest journalists in the United States, and who edited the Chicago Tribune for many years as an independent paper, is out for Hayes and Wheeler. He says he does not see how any advocate of civil service reform can fail to be "satisfied and more than satisfied" with Hayes' letter of acceptance. The declaration of advanced views on the civil service, and of the candidate's determination not under any circumstances to be a candidate for a second term places him squarely and fairly on the ground for which the reform Republicans have always contended. By this letter the chosen leader has faced the whole party about and set it marching in the direction of the old time Republicanism, and thus draws to its standard the old line Republicans, who formed almost the entire reform wing of the party.

Mr. White thinks, however, that it is not improbable that Governor Hayes underrates the power of the party over the President and the consequent difficulties of the task he proposes to himself when he engages to reform the civil service. In this Mr. White is perhaps correct. Governor Hayes has never occupied a position where the whole power of the politicians was brought to bear upon him. But be the difficulties what they may, he will be able, if he has thoroughly determined upon his course, to accomplish much and to demonstrate the practicability of a complete system of civil service which shall not be under the control of the professional politicians. If by an honest effort he shall convince the country of the absolute necessity of something more than an honest and resolute President in order to bring the administration of the government to the highest possible point of efficiency and the lowest possible point of corruption, he will [illegible] to rescue the country from the perils that now beset it. For it will be found at last that no system of reform can be successful through the changes of administration which is not established and regulated by law. Without the fixed limits and measures which legal enactments alone can give, the best that can be hoped is that by the election of a good, honest and strong man to the Presidency occasionally we shall secure occasionally a four years term of honest government. But even that is better than a continuation indefinitely of the sort of government we have been getting of late. The reform Republicans, such as Carl Schurz and Horace White and Whitelaw Reid who have for some time stood aloof from the party, are now supporting Hayes because they expect through his election to secure at least one term of good government and hope also to see something done during his term toward making the reform permanent through legal enactment.

The straightest of the straight Republican organs at the East do not hesitate to speak their minds in terms more forcible than complimentary, concerning the removal of Jewell and the driving of Bristow out of the Cabinet. The Boston Advertiser in an article on the subject half regretfully half spitefully says: "If the President will not act upon Republican principles and keep Republican pledges then the party must disavow his acts and disclaim responsibility." And the Boston Journal makes a still more vicious thrust. "Let us see," says the Journal, "less than eight months more of this peculiar administration. Let us brace up." The Worcester (Mass.) Spy says "the President is not giving his attention to helping the Republican party just now, or if he is his work though possibly well intended is ill advised." That "possibly well intended" is a cruel stab to be given by a friend. But so it goes. In his chagrin at the insubordination of his party the President descends to undignified complaining and small revenge, and the organs of the party meet eccentricities in that regard with further insubordination, and taunt him with his defeat. The scene thus presented is not a pleasant one to contemplate, but it may happily teach a lesson to future occupants of the White House.

The National Republican Committee organized at Philadelphia on the 6th. Hon Z Chandler of Michigan was elected chairman and R C McCormick of Arizona, secretary. The attendance was full and the spirit good. The new secretary is a son in law of Senator Thurman, which is objectionable, but he is a great improvement on the man he displaces. The reports from all the doubtful States were highly encouraging.—Exchange.

The National Republican Committee is no doubt a national necessity, but we venture to suggest that Hon Z Chandler, of Michigan would do himself and his party a great deal more credit by keeping out of that chairmanship. The Secretary of the Interior is supposed to have enough to do in the official service of his country which pays him therefor.

As the Presidential election approaches the politicians on both sides become extremely nervous lest the newspapers should say something that will hurt the party. It is strange that some people will continue to shut their eyes to the fact that the cry of party has lost its power over the masses of the people to such an extent that newspapers can tell the truth without driving anybody away from the candidates whose election they advocate.

The New York Post advises the Republicans to run ex Gov Morgan, Wm M Evarts or George William Curtis for governor and says it "doesn't have much confidence in a Republican victory without some such candidate," to which the Tribune adds, "neither does anybody else who has any sense."

The announcement that Mr Spurgeon intends visiting the United States this year seems to be premature. He writes to the Boston Watchman that he does not expect to make the visit.

There is talk of running Marshall Jewell as the Republican candidate for Governor of Connecticut. It would be an appropriate reply to his removal from the Cabinet.

Senator Conkling is named by the Albany (N. Y.) Express as the best man for the Republicans to run for Governor this fall.

CITY.

New Bridge across Clackamas.—A force are now employed by the Oregon and Railroad Company in grading for which is to lead from the main track point on the north bank of the Clackamas where the new bridge is to span the Notwithstanding the bridge —the stream has been several times and strengthened the structure is not entirely safe for heavy freight to cross during the winter months when water is high and current swift. For this sufficient reason the company has to build a new bridge a short distance where the old one now stands and that no trestle work will be in the construction of the new bridge stone abutments are to be built on of the river and the piers connected span of the Howe truss on which track will be laid. The earth as it is removed in grading track is being used in ballasting wherever it is necessary. A large of stone has been taken from the and masons will soon commence to on the abutments. The sawmill in Portland has been awarded the contract all the lumber and timber necessary to be used in building the new structure estimated at 250,000 feet. A force of is engaged in constructing a road from the sawmill out to which will be used in hauling the and heavy lumber to a point where to be placed on the cars and conveyed Clackamas. Work on the new bridge pushed forward as rapidly as practicable to insure its completion before the of the winter rains.

The Wrecked Coach.—A few days since which were wrecked near Drain station brought down to the machine shop, they will be taken apart and repaired baggage car, or caboose, escaped with comparatively little damage, and is again for service on the road. The coach in Conductor Stroud was standing when accident occurred was subjected to very handling and presents a most dilapidated The front end of the car is and a portion of the siding and roof into fine splinters. This was caused coach capsizing and striking against a which stood at one side of the road every window in the coach was into shivers, and the sides scratched Some time will be required to the wrecked coach and repair the sustained. When the fact is considered the coach was upset and so badly it seems really miraculous that more were not injured, or several Conductor Stroud happened near the forward end of the which accounts for his being so severe. Had he been a few feet nearer the would inevitably have been killed considered, the disaster resulted fortunately under the circumstances persons were injured, and thus far there no loss of life.

The Car Shops.—We paid a flying visit to the machine shop on the east the river and found everything in a state of bustling activity. About 20 men constantly employed by the railroad in repairing old and building new stock. A number of new freight cars built and are almost ready to be wheels. Besides these there is going on constantly, which is keep the rolling stock of the good trim. No sooner does a car get slightly out of repair, than laid in ordinary," temporarily and repair, however trifling, made at this means everything connected rolling stock is kept in splendid condition service. We observed several passenger coaches under the long sheds, which have recently been repainted and renovated, dozen locomotives (like so many in their stalls), that are ready for duty as steam can be raised. These "iron horses" are kept as brightly burnished dollar, and as handsome an mechanism—so simple and yet so complicated and ponderous—as one could desire. The car shop is quite a lively community, and the ringing of the clatter of hammers and crashing of imparts a sort of city air to the place.

Mammoth Stalk of Pie Plant.—Rev Geo Atkinson exhibited at this office yesterday a mammoth stalk and leaf of rhubarb pie plant, which was raised in the yard W. W Buck, of Oregon City. To give our readers some idea of the magnitude stalk and leaf, we give the following of the growth. Circumference of following all the sinuosities of the 19 feet and 2 inches. Distance from the stalk to the extreme top of the 54 inches, length of the stalk 22 distance from the top of the stalk to top of leaf, 31½ inches, extreme leaf 3 feet and 2½ inches circumference the stalk at the base, 6½ inches, circumference of the stalk where the leaf commences inches. The vegetable from which taken was raised from seed sent by Mrs J G Wilson, while that in Ohio. Mr Atkinson has made an diagram of the monster leaf and giving the dimensions of the same will forward to Mr Diffu now at Philadelphia, to be placed on exhibition at the Centennial to show what Oregon soil is capable of producing.

Rebuilding Locomotives.—The old locomotive John H Couch which was used to in building and ballasting the side road and in filling up a portion of is being completely overhauled condition for service. Although reporter is almost as ancient as the when ready to take the track again be able to render valuable service for time to come. She will be in construction trains and doing general work for the company. The little locomotive James B. Stephens (which was the that ever run on the East Side will probably be overhauled soon and a built, as the present one is about out. The "Jimmy," (now No 3 on R. R.), is probably the oldest locomotive in the State, except the Couch. She is "have made her time" twenty years the Michigan Central. The Stephens out of service for the last two years, to be a good locomotive still when considered.

Races.—From a dispatch received evening sent by Mr Owens we learn following horses have entered for the days races which are to come off over course the present week. Wednesday Mansfield Tom Merry and Bu Thursday.—Amy Howard and Sancho Billy Bigham Craggi Bourne and Merry. The following are the races day—Mile heats 3 in 5 purse $300. Second Three year-old race open to all 3 purse $200 2 best in 3. Third day miles and repeat, purse $300 second saves his entrance. The races will be under California State rules. The track yards short. The colt races will be run stand to stand. Entrance to close to all above races on or before the night of the of July. Three bona fide entrances to the above purses. The races are open to Osceola and Twenty One. Twenty cent of the entrance added to all the above.

Preliminary Examination.—Complaint made several days ago by a young lady Nellie M charging Mr George with larceny by bailee of a gold watch yesterday the preliminary examination came before Justice Couch. Mr C A Ball deputy district attorney appeared for the State assisted by Messrs Caples and Mulkey. W and I A appeared for the defense. After the prosecution had rested the counsel for defense moved the court that the defendant be discharged and the case dismissed on the ground of insufficiency of evidence. The motion was argued at some length and was denied by the court. The court then adjourned until 9 o clock this morning, when the defense will make what showing they can. We have heard both sides of this somewhat complicated case but prefer to make no statement in advance of the judicial proceedings now being had.

Gone up the Road.—The Albany Democrat Monday says. The elegant drawing room President's car of the Oregon and California railroad passed up the road yesterday to Comstock's with Mr Koehler the vice president who goes up for the purpose of taking Conductor G M Stroud who was injured in the recent accident at Elk creek to his home in Portland. The act is a considerate one on the part of the company and exhibits a care for their employes not usually shown by corporations."

THE CENTENNIAL EXPOSITION

THE BUILDINGS AND GROUNDS DESCRIBED EXPRESSLY FOR OREGON PEOPLE—COMPARISONS WHICH ALL CAN UNDERSTAND

Philadelphia July 12, 1876.

To the Editor of the Oregonian

The great Exposition at Philadelphia receives such frequent and exploit attention at the hands of newspaper correspondents and others that I am almost afraid to add another letter to the list. I feel impelled to write however from two motives: one that of paying my sincere tribute as an American citizen to the grandeur, almost surpassing words, of the display; and the other that of furnishing, if I can, some standards of comparison as to size of buildings etc for the special benefit of the children of our town. To picture the city of Philadelphia furnishes a good basis for imagining what may follow. I am told that it covers 130 square miles, fancy a city on the other side of the Wallamet extending from Milwaukie to the Columbia in one direction and far beyond the Sandy river in the other; that it contains 10,000 more homes than any other city of our land and that its street cars traverse 140 miles.

The grounds used for the exposition would cover as nearly as I can estimate a tract reaching from Park street in Portland to the river and from Harrison street to the District. Within this great expanse you must picture mentally five great buildings chiefly made of iron and glass, a dozen others larger than the skating rink which formerly stood on Fourth street and a hundred minor edifices. Of the four buildings named, three cover forty five acres of ground.

Let me try to describe the appearance of the principal of these, the one called the Main Building. If it stood in Portland with one end resting at the corner of Morrison and Sixth it would extend southward to the convent on Market street and eastward to the east side of Fourth street. You see that it could take in all our public buildings, churches, schools and a small town besides! You must then imagine it divided lengthwise by seven walks or aisles, and transversely by twelve or fourteen other walks forming divisions not unlike our blocks. These again are fairly honeycombed with little squares and paths so that you can walk eleven miles simply to pass each exhibit. In this vast temple, two grand organs, one at each end can play at the same time without interfering with each other and a large brass band performing made but little more impression amid the hum of voices than a hand organ on the street.

These statements give one a faint idea of the accumulated wealth extent and variety of the display of skill and industry contained within it. For the whole available surface is occupied with frequently not enough room to obtain a fitting view.

I have spoken of the prodigality and variety of exhibited products in the main building. I should add a word as to the taste and beauty of arrangement of the various displays. Such unromantic material as soap iron grindstones and cloths are arranged in solid symmetry, or fantasy so as to excite your wonder and even allure the eye with positive attractiveness. I am tempted to dwell upon the iron exhibit. Surely the king of metals has a worthy tribute to his place in man's history in the vast array of his forces here assembled and repeated in the fourteen acres of Machinery Hall. I remember reading a fascinating essay of Ruskin's on iron and man's debt to it. He brought out its function as chief colorer in the landscape and described it as the objective basis of our entire civilization. And here we see it massed in columns and pyramids twisted in ribbons five inches thick and spun into wire finer than hair beaten into tiny cylinders and shafts and deftly shaped into a thousand tools and instruments until one wonders that among his idol and ideal divinities man has not enshrined the genius of Iron by the side of Light and Life.

Time and space would fail in one or twenty letters to particularize the contents of this great hall which is the heart of the whole Centennial celebration. Surely no one who can gather together the money necessary to bring him to it should fail at any ordinary sacrifice to see for himself. Like the Queen of Sheba what is so unreportable by word of mouth or dash of pen. The real sacrifice is not to have come—a sacrifice not of pleasure but of positive instruction and elect opportunity to become acquainted briefly with the work of the round world. I would not have missed even the transient three days hurried glance for twice the cost of the trip from the Pacific.

Egypt, Japan, Russia Spain and Brazil astonish one with their progress in civilized arts. Italy and France surpass your imagination in the luxury and magnificence of plastic art jewelry and fabrics. England in her porcelains, furniture and cloths and Germany Switzerland Sweden the distant Iceland and Tunis, even effete civilizations like Soudan and Mexico have spent hundreds of thousands of dollars in showing to us the youngest of nations their tributes to this age.

The English colonial exhibits are leveled with great skill, giving every species of information needed to an emigrant and attractions enough to make one emigrate. I could not help deploring that we of Oregon had not obtained and photographed, as those colonies and many Western States here, the finest scenes and buildings of our beautiful State.

Speaking of Oregon carries us directly to Agricultural Hall where we are represented by not only material products, but typical specimens of the genus Oregonian. Our friend Dr Quimby holds forth and is in his glory rehearsing climate wheat and timber, two of which trials are there for witness, and he himself will speak for the first. If need only tell it his modesty would permit how fifteen years ago he trundled his worldly goods to the Quimby farm paid for it in butter and stock in ten years and has gone on with the whole family rejoicing like strong men to run a race ever since, in order to frame an argument for the State simply irresistible. He should add however, that pluck and perseverance win the world round as well as in Oregon. As to our exhibit I feel it is to be thoroughly satisfactory and it attracts very constant attention but ten thousand dollars not a tithe of the sum spent by many States would have lifted us into the chief notice of the department. At least let us as a State pay handsomely for what has been so creditably done. This is an act at once of justice and honor, which our coming legislature must not hesitate a moment in performing.

An opportunity yet remains of a high order for Oregon ere the Exposition closes. From September 11th to 21st there is to be a special display of northern pomological products and in October of autumn vegetables, potatoes and the like. September 25th to 30th cereals. We should by all means send a pyramid of apples and other fruits to take the palm as we could, in this way. If by that time a few framed photographs of scenery and towns could be added, I think they would serve to inform many thousands of the nature of our Northwestern home and bring settlers to us in the future.

The press one of your correspondents have mentioned the display of canned salmon made by the Oregon Packing Company of Clifton. It stands by itself in another part of the building and bears testimony both to the great Columbia and the enterprise of the fishery which sends it.

As for Machinery Hall a monument of [illegible] and [illegible] I must leave them [illegible] and [illegible] the [illegible] and [illegible] work of [illegible] Great Britain [illegible] like picture, little groups of [illegible] of these was one [illegible] of a mother [illegible] expanded [illegible] the [illegible] star with [illegible] lays his [illegible] workmanship [illegible] His mastery [illegible] he wrought [illegible] master [illegible] and Charity [illegible] its daughter [illegible] this [illegible] simply [illegible] scene and then [illegible] play [illegible] story and work affect us as the strange weaving of genius and art with the uncultured hand and brain.

While in Europe the spirit may move me to write again but I shall find no subject so fruitful of interest as this world in seventy five acres of buildings—the Centennial Exposition of America.

MORE ABOUT THE CENTENNIAL MAMMOTH

Colfax W T, July 18, 1876

To the Editor of the Oregonian

In my last I promised to give you further particulars of the Centennial Mammoth of Hangman's Creek. On arriving there I found the place to be 40 miles from Colfax and 145 from Walla Walla. The springs from which the fossils are taken are in a valley about one half mile long, by one quarter wide. They are near the center of what has once been a small lake about 75 yards across. The valley has two feet of very rich soil under which is found a stratum of clay which appears to have been tramped very solid in time. This stratum is about 18 inches thick. Under this is a bed of marl about 3 feet thick resting on gravel consisting of granite quartz and sandstone. The springs make their appearance through peat bogs about sixteen feet in diameter. Most of the fossils are found about 10 feet from the surface. There have been discovered 9 bones which range from 3 to 5 feet in length. The largest is in a very bad state of preservation and measures 12 feet 4 inches in length and 2 feet in circumference. They have found the two upper teeth not of the large fossil but of the same species which proves that the animal had but four teeth and is of the Elephas Primigenius. It differs very much from the fossil elephant of Europe and also from those found in America but resembles the living species of Indian elephant in many respects, more particularly in that the ribands of the teeth are waving and running obliquely crosswise. Two other teeth have been found which cannot be accurately described. I can think of nothing better to compare them to than the head of a sucker fish, the top of the head representing the root of the tooth, the mouth the surface that has been used for nipping only. The tooth will weigh about 10 pounds. It measures 9 inches on face, on front of which about 2 inches is enamel and has been considerably worn. It is 4 inches thick, 7 inches broad and 11 inches around the bottom. It is composed of 20 lateral layers, each distinct and separate. A vertebra at the shoulder measured 13 inches across transverse processes, connecting surface 5 inches in diameter, spinous process 24 inches long. A vertebra of the neck measured 7 inches across connecting (articulating) surface.

A projecting casement of a tusk was found containing cavities of the brain. It had encased a horn 10½ inches in diameter and was 13 inches long. This includes full length of the casement from brain to the end of encasement.

A piece of charcoal was found on the gravel bed bearing marks of an instrument. The marks are very distinct and show to have been done with some rude instrument. I forgot to mention that the rib of the large fossil was four feet and 7 inches long.

Since this discovery many other persons in this county remember that they have taken out very large bones and as there are many such springs in this and Stevens counties I have no hesitancy in saying here is a large field for the geologist.

Teeth are a poor substitute for Nature's. Let those who so believe use the SOZODONT which if daily applied will prevent all necessity for false teeth by keeping the real ones sound and healthy.

Hagan's Magnolia Balm preserves and restores the complexion, removes freckles tan and sallowness, makes the skin soft white and delicate. Its application cannot be detected.

Lyon's Kathairon makes beautiful glossy hair, prevents its falling out, or turning gray. It has stood the test of 40 years. Is charmingly perfumed and has no rival.

The relaxing power of Johnson's Anodyne Liniment is truly wonderful. Cases are already numerous where bent and stiffened limbs have been limbered and straightened by it. When used for this purpose the part should be washed and rubbed thoroughly. Apply the liniment cold and rub it in with the hand.

A crowd of Horse Men and others daily throng the stores in country and town for Sheridan's Cavalry Condition Powders. They understand that horses cannot be kept in good condition without them and with them can be on a much less quantity of grain.

HUNDREDS of people have been permanently cured of the Piles by using Pond's Extract. Half a teaspoonful should be taken three times a day and the parts bathed freely. A compress wet with it and kept in place by a bandage will prove beneficial. In extreme cases half an ounce or more may be injected night and morning when the piles are internal.

A Slight Exposure in Bad Weather when the system is out of order often brings on a Stubborn Cold that almost irritates the Lungs and if not promptly treated frequently leads to a tendency to pulmonary complaints. To avoid this danger those troubled with colds should resort at once to Dr D Jayne's Expectorant which soon loosens and eradicates Coughs, soothes and heals inflamed parts and removes all anxiety by setting the patient on the way to good health once more.

In local monetary matters there is a moderate degree of activity, with few important changes either in the course or tendency of the market or the rates or terms for loans and discounts. Considerable sums are idle at the banks, and offers by outside parties to make loans at current rates are not infrequent. The fact is apparent that in Portland, as in the principal money centers East and in San Francisco, there is an ample supply of capital seeking employment, and while the popular demand is for a lower rate of interest, there is no doubt that the surplus funds available are quite sufficient to carry on the measures of trade, etc., that are paying at the ruling figures of 10@12 per cent. per annum on long time accommodations, or 1@1¼ per cent. on 60 or 90-day favors.

There is nothing new in the phase of the silver question to-day, the general determination among business men seeming to be to reject trade dollars at anything over 90 cents and receive other silver coins at the rates fixed by the banks from day to day. The present condition of affairs on the silver question is a somewhat perplexing one, and there seems to be no easy way out of it. What Congress has done so far in regard to it is considered of little weight on this coast as far as the final settlement of the question is concerned.

Prices for Wheat.

One of the most important questions to the farmers of Oregon, and through them to the business men generally of the State, is how to dispose of their wheat to the best advantage. It is claimed that wheat cannot be produced and marketed in the Willamet valley, on an average, for less than $1 35 per cental, without an actual loss to the farmer, and that when it falls below that figure it is safe to hold; for, says one writer on the subject, "no commodity can long remain at a price below the actual cost of production." The minimum price here being now $1 35, we might conclude that the market had touched bottom and would go no lower. We annex here a table of the prices in Liverpool at this period in the season for three years for Oregon cargoes ex-warehouse:

1876 .... 12s@12s 6d
1875 .... 10s 10d@10s 11d
1874 .... 9s 10d@10s

And from the Rural Press of San Francisco we give the following table, showing the average prices paid for wheat in San Francisco for the past twelve years:

Years.	Whole year, per ctl	Years.	Whole year, per ctl
1863-65	$1 15	1870-71	$2 25
1865-66	1 97	1871-72	2 29
1866-67	1 76	1872-73	1 91
1867-68	2 41	1873-74	2 02
1868-69	1 71	1874-75	1 60
1869-70	1 70	1875-76	1 96

The general average per cental for the first six years above enumerated is $2 26½; for the whole twelve years $2 14; for the eleven years last enumerated, excluding 1864-65, in which years grain sold exceptionally high, is $1 96.

The Press concludes from the above table that for California farmers "it is perfectly safe to hold for $1 60 per cental, but from the columns of the [illegible] paper, which is of date July 22d, and quotes [illegible] at $1 50@1 55, we extract the following, which shows that the farmers of that State do not place implicit confidence in its predictions of better prices, for it says:

There is about half a dozen ships at Oakland and as many more at Vallejo, and wheat is going in most of them at a rapid rate. There is also probably five or six loading on this side. Out of these perhaps a dozen will get off by the end of the month, which would make 18 for July, against an average of [illegible] for the same month the previous year.

Against the argument that the immense crops on this coast will tend to keep prices down this year, the writer says:

This is a mistake, for the amount of produce here [illegible] into the [illegible] ocean of European consumption, not a hundredth part of what is required for that populous country.

Now, if he [illegible] that the surplus of this country was [illegible] part of the consumption of Europe he might be nearly correct, but if it was intended to say the required imports of Europe he makes a grave mistake in placing our surplus far below the actual proportion.

[illegible] to us that though the article from which the above extracts are made has been prepared with a great deal of labor and thought, that it omits several things which ought to come into the full consideration of the subject; such as the present supply in Europe, the condition of the crops in the great wheat producing regions beyond the Atlantic, the price of tonnage, etc. All these very materially and extensively affect the market, and whoever [illegible] its course without regard to them, is as likely to be wrong as right. The article [illegible] winds up with the advice to the farmer, "not to hold for high prices but to sell whenever a fair living rate is offered, but for no less, as the time will come during the year when the fair living rate can be obtained, with interest, on the investment."

Domestic Produce.

Wheat is unchanged, with but very few transactions to note at any price. In fact exporters are doing nothing, and holders while hoping for better prices are fearful that rates will not appreciate before the new crop is abundant in the market. Flour is in fair supply and apparently firm at our quotations, but the incoming of the new crop of wheat may produce some little disturbance in the market, though the mills have [illegible] little [illegible] in [illegible] during the past year, and we are informed by one who has the facilities to know that it has been [illegible] a saving [illegible] during the year to buy wheat and convert it into flour at current rates, that there has been no profit in the business at all. Mill feed is still sustained at former quotations, but the tendency is toward a weaker market. Provisions and dairy products are generally firm, and trade may be remarked as more active than last week, with no material change in prices. Eggs are, however, [illegible], and we should not be surprised at a decline to 25 cents per dozen by the end of the week; the tendency of the San Francisco market being downward at latest advices. Hides have advanced 1@2c per lb, and the demand is active. Of dried apples there are none offering, and quotations are nominally unchanged. Wool comes forward freely, and the feeling is somewhat improved, though prices remain about as at our last quotations. A slight advance is not altogether unlikely.

LAND FOR IMMIGRANTS.

Choice Farms for Sale.

4,000 ACRES, IN QUANTITIES TO SUIT PURCHASERS.

230 ACRES DUE SOUTH AND ADJOINING the Railroad Depot at Salem, all under cultivation, and suitable for grain or vegetables.

946 Acres, four miles southeast of Salem, on the railroad, with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county, with fine springs, consisting in part of the old Rector donation claim, on which I raised the past year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety-four bushels per acre, grain weighed and ground chained by Mr. Alfred Stanton, of Salem.

2,700 Acres of prairie and light brush land, with timber for farming purposes, bounded by the Willamette River for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river, commencing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette Valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $15 to $25 per acre. This land will all be immediately resurveyed, and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels, to suit purchasers. It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage, and I can offer any person or persons, or colony of persons, desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette Valley, near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages, as well as most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages, on more favorable terms, than they can ever expect to realize again. THOMAS CROSS.

VALUABLE LANDS FOR SALE.

600,000 Acres in

EASTERN OREGON!

For Farming and Grazing Purposes.

THESE LANDS ARE SITUATED IN WASCO, Grant and Baker counties, and are offered for sale in such sized tracts, not less than 160 acres, as purchasers may desire. Here is afforded a most favorable opportunity to immigrants and settlers making homes and low-priced land to acquire both on the most reasonable terms. These lands are excellent for farming and grazing. On most of the tracts no grubbing, or other preparation of the land for plowing is requisite. A growth of nutricious grass covers the uplands, affording the best of pastures, while in the valleys and bottom lands the grass can be mowed and made into hay. Living springs and streams water the lands in every direction. The uplands, or rolling lands, can be put into [illegible] with the most satisfactory [illegible]. Fruits, particularly peaches, plums, grapes, [illegible], as well as the smaller fruits, can be grown in great abundance. The climate of Eastern Oregon is very healthful. Flourishing towns are located at convenient points for traffic; the mails are regularly conveyed throughout that section, and a prosperous population is already established, occupied in farming, stock growing, mining, and various other pursuits.

Terms, $1 25 per acre and upwards, according to quality and quantity. Interest ten per cent. on deferred payments.

The City of Portland does ordain as follows:

Section 1. The Committee on Streets and Public Property are hereby authorized and directed to advertise for, receive proposals and enter into contract with the lowest responsible bidder for furnishing oil, wicks, burners and chimneys, and keeping in order the street oil lamps for the term of one year, subject to the following conditions: The number of lamps required to be lighted under such contract shall not at any time be reduced to a less number than one hundred, but the Council may at any time reduce the number of lamps to be lighted under said contract to that number.

He shall light and keep lit, with a good and sufficient light, all of said lamps during the hours specified in the list known as the "Schedule of time for lighting the street oil lamps," filed in the Auditor's office July 19, 1876, and at the expiration of his contract shall return the fountains, burners and everything connected therewith in good order and condition.

Section 2. Said contract shall contain a provision to the effect that for any failure to light or keep lit any lamp or lamps in said contract during any of the hours specified in said list, caused by the negligence or carelessness of the contractor, he shall forfeit pay therefor, and an additional sum equal to one tenth of the monthly contract price for lighting such lamp for each and every night of such failure.
